To whom this may concern,

I am writing regarding our company's relationship with Action Sales. Before meeting with the team at Action Sales, we were having difficulties procuring some of the equipment for our restaurant. At the time, we were working with a couple other vendors that were not experienced with Japanese cuisine. Luckily, Richard and his team were able to help us find the right equipment and supplies. Being only the first of many restaurants we had planned to open, we were looking for a supplier that would be able to meet current and future needs. With Action Sales, I believe, we have found the right company for our expansion. Richard and his team are knowledgeable about all the products they sell. What's really great is that if they don't have something I need, they will find it so that I could continue running the day to day operations of the restaurant rather than going on a scavenger hunt. Their close relationship with many equipment companies gives me piece of mind knowing that they can find pretty much anything I can think of and that I'd have multiple choices to decide from. I am looking forward to our future growth with the support of Action Sales and their incredible team.

Warmest Regards,
