Is tourism killing Venice?

- 1 Venice is one of the most beautiful and most historic cities in the world. It is in the north of the Adriatic Sea and is built on 118 small islands. There are almost no streets in Venice. The islands are connected by 182 canals, with a total length of more than 46 kilometres. The longest canal is the Grand Canal, which is 3.8 kilometres long. More than 400 bridges cross the canals.
- 2 Venice is also one of the most famous cities in the world. This means that it is very popular with tourists. The city has a population of just 55,000 but every day, around 60,000 tourists visit the city. More than 22 million tourists visit Venice every year, which is good for businesses such as hotels, restaurants and cafés. But the enormous numbers of tourists also cause pollution and the famous parts of the city, such as the main square, are always very crowded, especially in August, which is the busiest month of the year.
- 3 The enormous cruise ships that visit Venice are also a problem. Every year, over 1.5 million visitors arrive in Venice by cruise ship. But according to local people, these visitors are not the biggest problem. Most tourists come to Venice from other Italian cities and holiday resorts, especially when it rains and they cannot stay on the beach. A further problem is that these visitors bring their own food with them and don't spend any money in Venice.
- 4 Venice is not the only place that has too many visitors. The historic Croatian city of Dubrovnik, which is popular with fans of the television drama Game of Thrones, is also overcrowded with tourists. The Scottish island of Skye has similar problems. Visitors often stay for just a few hours and all of them want to visit the four or five most beautiful places on the island, which are always overcrowded.
